

ABSTRACT

In one embodiment, the invention provides a method comprising for each tuple containing a counter and an object; and for at least one remote device in a network that has the particular object and counter contained in the tuple, automatically sampling the counter.